Southend libraries saved after massive backlash over closure plans

LEIGH and Kent Elms libraries are to stay open after overwhelming public opposition to their closure.

The libraries will be run by a mixture of paid staff and volunteers.

A council consultation saw thousands of people oppose the proposals, which aimed to save cash.

Adam Jones, councillor for St Laurence Ward and one of the founders of Friends of Kent Elms Library, said he was satisfied with the decision of keeping both libraries open.

Mr Jones said: "I'm really pleased with this result so the people that the two libraries serve are not missing out on the facilities.

"It could have been a case of a straight vote to close one or the other. I think the council have made the right choice as the two libraries have very different people using them. I think both parties, the Friends of Kent Elms and Save Leigh Library, have put forward good cases to stay open too."

Southend councillor for culture and tourism Derek Jarvis said he was pleased with the result of the consultation into keeping the library service open.

He said: "The whole review of the library service needed to be done as it hadn't been done for 14 years.

"The outcome of the consultation is good, there were some very strong voices involved in it.

"I'm happy with the outcome and that people in both areas will keep their library services.'

Under the proposals suggested to change library services, one of the libraries could have been closed or run by volunteers. The option was put forward due to the Forum arts centre, which includes a library, opening in Southend.

The proposals were put in place to make cuts to the authority's library service budget of £378,000.

The future of Southchurch and Westcliff libraries will now go to a scrutiny meeting, then full council.

Thorpdene and Friars libraries will be amalgamated at a site in Delaware Road.

STAFF gathered for the official opening of two new centres set to improve residents' access to healthcare.

The centres in North Road and Valkyrie Road, both in Westcliff, will offer a wide variety of health services to the people of Southend.

The official opening took place at the North Road site and saw the burial of a time capsule. It was created by local artist Dave Taylor with children from six schools in the area.

southend@vellowad.co.uk

Both centres will offer a range of services with the North Road site offering three surgeries, leg ulcer clinics, ultrasound, paediatric speech services and continence advice.

Valkyrie Road will offer speech and language therapy, podiatric surgery, a podiatry clinic and ultrasound.

Katherine Kirk MBE, former chair of South East Essex Primary Care Trust, opened the centres last Monday.

She said the centres would provide more efficient and effective healthcare for people of the borough. "It is wonderful to see this work has paid off and to see how local residents are benefiting from new fit-for-purpose buildings that offer a greater range of health services under one roof."

Kate Halliday, estate programme manager for NHS property services said she was pleased to see the two new buildings operational. "These fabulous centres have been a long time in the making and, as someone who has been involved in this project for many years it's great to see how they are benefitting the residents of Westcliff and the staff who provide excellent heath services for them.

She added: "Absolutely everyone involved should be very proud of this achievement.

A MUM will trek across Nepal to raise money for the Essex and Herts Air Ambulance.

"I'm taking a satellite phone with me so I can call back to the station and check in with everyone," she said.

"Although I am worried it won't work - I went on Southend beach to test it the other day and because of all the buildings it didn't work."

The presenter has chosen the air ambulance as she spent five days with them earlier in the year.

She said: "Some of the things I saw were shocking."

"I know it is their job but I suffered from post traumatic stress syndrome afterwards.

2013 sees another two valued Altex staff hit the 20 year mark, the two decades have flown by for the company and the individuals.

Grant Ludlow our sales manager joined us from the financial industry and brought a wealth of experience to the company, most notably with his admin skills in relation to marketing and monitoring systems. Grant says "we differ from most companies in our sales technique, being a long established company we are able to sell the virtues of dealing with Altex UK as well as being able to offer a range of market leading products, we never try to tie the people down to making a purchase on our visit, but provide a full presentation in the post (or email) containing a full specification and costs. It is then left for the customer to contact us if they wish to engage our services (we never phone customers to chase an order) of course price is always important but it must be balanced with the quality of the product plus the service and security you gain from dealing with a long established company such as Altex

Martin Chapman our technical manager joined us from the fire arms industry, the engineering skills he acquired repairing the intricate workings of all kinds of fire arms meant the basic engineering techniques required in his position as technical manager with us were easily translated with very limited training required.

Martin said "although when I joined Altex it was purely on the technical side of the business, over the years my job role has evolved into processing orders for manufacture, ordering materials, trade sales and surveys, I enjoy the varied nature of my job and am one of those strange people who look forward to getting up for work in the mornings.

Managing director Andrew Bawden said "I'm very lucky to have such dedicated people as part of my staff, it is one of the main keys to our success. This year sees Grant and Martin being with us for 20 years, but only last year saw Paul Gilbert (production manager) and Stuart Fentiman (aluminium charge hand) celebrate 20 years with us! I thank them and all our valued employees for their continued support."

Like Paul and Stuart, Grant and Martin will be enjoying a family holiday at Centre Parcs courtesy of Altex UK as a token of gratitude for their loyalty and commitment.

Hooded assailant threatened to stab his victims

E-fit released of robbery suspect

By YA crime reporter

southend@yellowad.co.uk

AN E-FIT has been released by police of a man suspected two street robberies and two robbery attempts in Southend.

In three of the incidents he threatened to stab his victims, although no weapon was produced. The robber, who is believed to be aged between 16 and 21, was accompanied by groups of two to four youths who helped to search the victims. The attempted robberies both happened on Saturday, September 28.

The first crime was committed at 6pm at

The first crime was committed at 6pm at Queensway, near the bus station, when the suspect and four others, approached two 17-year-old youths and demanded money.

The youths ran off and nothing was taken.

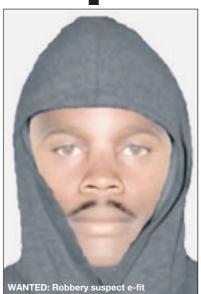

The youths ran off and nothing was taken. About an hour-and-a-half later, the suspect and three others approached a man at Victoria Avenue, demanded money and threatened to stab him. The man refused to hand over cash and the suspects ran off.

The same suspect and four others were involved in a robbery at Warrior Square at about 5pm on Saturday, October 19.

The victim was a 15-year-old boy who was ordered to hand over a mobile phone after the suspect threatened to stab him.

The second robbery was at Pier Hill at about 6.25pm on Tuesday, October 29 when three victims were approached by the main suspect and four others. One of the victims handed over a mobile phone and cash after the suspect threatened to stab him.

Investigating officer DC Mike Buckingham, explained that the e-fit is an image of the main perpetrator who threatened to stab victims and made the demands for money. The officer said: "We believe that the suspects might have been waiting near Southend High Street and followed likely victims to quieter areas.

"It is possible that they are all from out of the area and used the train to get to Southend to commit their crimes." The main suspect is about 5ft 9in to 6ft tall and of stocky build. He was wearing a dark green or black hooded top.

Anyone who can identify the suspect or has information about any of the incidents should contact Dc Buckingham at Southend CID or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

A CHEF from a Leigh-based care home took part in the final of the Hallmark Care Homes Care Chef of the Year 2013.

Sarah Savidge from Admiral Court Care Home, on Court Manchester Drive, competed in the challenge at Unilever's headquarters in Surrey along with colleagues. Along with her felcompetitors, low Sarah was asked to make a three-course meal, in 90 minutes, suitable for residents in a care home.

The chefs were all presented with a mystery box of ingredients on the day and had little time to devise their menu.

Judge Scott Sinfield said all the food was delicious. He said: "All the chefs did so well and should all be very proud to have made the finals, having beaten out many other chefs from other Hallmark homes.

Flat Roof Problems: -

felt roofs tend to blister become brittle and eventually crack, this will cause a slow breakdown allowing water ingress to damage roofing timbers before any problem is visibly detected within the home. Felt attracts moss & algae growth along with pooling water which will further degrade the roof surface.

They had been collected over the years by a woman who sadly died recently, and her daughter passed them on to Joyce.

"A lady came to my door - I have hundreds of people giving me stuff to sell – and she had the eggcups, which her mother had collected over many years," Joyce said.

"There are all sorts - some shaped like rabbits, some are very old. They really are amazing."

Joyce will spend the day before her 84th birthday preparing for yet another super sale.

She will mix celebrating with sorting and displaying thousands of items for her week-long moneyof items for her week-long money-making effort for Southend Hospital's Keyhole Cancer Appeal, which starts next year. The octogenarian plus from Thundersley, who was made an MBE for her charity work, has raised more than £1.5million for the hospital over the past 25 years and her 'garden sales' - there are too many items to fit into her home - have become legendary, each one has its own special talking point.

"I have so many things to sell this time apart from the egg cups - from guitars and Harrods teddy bears to books, bric a brac, clothes and furniture and there will be a giant toy stall too," she said.

"I usually make around £3,000 from each sale, and am hoping to do just as well this time.

The sale will run all week from Monday November 18 to Saturday November 23 from 9am to 4pm every day in Joyce's garden at 22 Park Road, Thundersley.

Southend of a telephone fraud scam after people reported dubious calls.

Four people in Leigh were called by men claiming to be from the Metropolitan Police or a company running a competition.

In three of the cases, a man said he was investigating the fraudulent use of their bank or asked for card details.

In the other case, the caller claimed the person had won some money and he needed their bank details.

All of the people called became suspicious and contacted police following the calls last Friday.

Enquiries are continuing and arrests

vious scams but police continue to advise residents to be on their guard against phone fraudsters.

A spokesman for Essex Police said:

"The police, your bank or any reputable company would never phone you to ask about your bank details or for any sensitive information like PIN numbers."

Woman, 60, is injured in car collision

POLICE are appealing for witnesses a traffic collision between a woman and a car shortly before 5.10pm on Friday (November 8).

A 60-year-old woman was crossing Acacia Drive, outside of Thorpe Bay railway station in Southend, when she was in collision with a blue Nissan Micra which was travelling towards Southend town centre.

The woman was treated by paramedics and taken to Southend Hospital for treatment to head, shoulder and leg injuries which were not believed to be life-threatening. The driver of the car, a 36-year-old man was uninjured.

The road was closed until 9.30pm while police carried out investigations at the scene and the vehicle was forensically recovered. Police enquiries into the circumstances of the collision are continuing and anyone with information is asked to call Southend Police Station on 101.

■ Opinion and readers' letters

Vandals should face hefty fines

I READ your headlines regarding the council's reluctance to rebuild new toilets because of, they say, vandalism. This would soon stop if, when caught, culprits are made to pay a £1,000 fine. If the public need to use the toilets many people cannot wait until they get home. If they could there would be no need for toilets. When people leave pubs and clubs they may have to go to the toilet and therefore leave themselves open to pay fines when relieving themselves in the street.

While on the subject of drinking, why is South St in Romford, closed to the buses? Bus drivers cannot be blamed for refusing to use that part of their route. The public have to run the gauntlet after 21.30 and that has been the situation for years. Why are the offenders not put behind bars until they sober up? After all, that is why we pay the police.

Ralph Battershall Romford

Police should be more transparent

NICK Alston is right to consider transparency, something lacking in the previous administration. There on the official website they told us that they were neutral in civil cases and did not conduct evictions -they merely attended them....ready if called upon to maintain the Queen's peace.

A letter from the chief constable to the editor of a regional newspaper confirmed this doctrine, rebuking the paper for trying to describe what a police eviction might look like. The local MP and the leader

The local MP and the leader of Basildon Council were said to be upset about this misconception.

Four months later - a task force of 700 officers was assembled including 300 plus in riot gear who tore down fences and walls on the site in Crays Hill to engage in Europe's largest forced eviction.

What had made the Essex constabulary abandon its neutral stance about which they were so adamant beforehand

Although an information document was made public five months after the invasion of Dale Farm in a dawn raid there was nothing in it to uncover the chain of command, nothing about who was in charge, nothing about who made the decision to instigate a reversal of normal practice and nothing about what turn of events led to this singular change of police procedure. It did mention in a section on strategy that the force would seek to minimise the chances of disorder but despite this laudable aim employed tactics guaranteed to provoke resistance and conflict.

(The customary method is begin softly, softly and then summon extra assistance if that does not work and finally call in the beauty mob call in the heavy mob.

At Dale Farm, Essex police reversed the order of engagements and began by sending in the Heavy Brigade. On what possible justification?
We were told nothing apart

We were told nothing apart from a spokesperson muttering a mantra at every questioner: "We have intelligence" he would say.

A huge operation, extremely costly as Lord Avemore pointed out last year and one that was a colossal waste of public money he declared. However the involvement of Essex Police has been described in the New York Times thus: Police evict Travellers... and yet no justification has been offered to the British taxpaying public and two years have already gone by.

Gerry Oates via e-mail

Cashless buses would be a scandal

THE £1 extra cash fare on

London buses generates more income than it costs to administer, but even if the operating costs did ever exceed income, part of the annual credit that remains on the Oyster cards could pay the difference.

I previously reported this credit was more than £30 million, but following a closer look this figure is actually more than £77 million. This figure is based on £27 million active cards with an average credit of £2.87

On this basis it would be a scandal if the mayor agrees to allow London buses to go cashless, because it will result in a poorer bus service for vulnerable people and in outer-London where cash payments remain high.

Cllr David Durant Rainham and Wennington Independent Residents Groub

We must not miss opportunity

IF one failed the 11 plus some 60 years ago and an academic education was missed all was not lost in West Ham. For 13 year olds the municipal college provided excellent education in commerce, art and engineering departments together with a school of building. Today we constantly hear of lack of skills leading to reliance upon immirrants to reliance upon immigrants.

Castle Point MP Rebecca
Harris is both supporting Tomorrow's Engineering Week and objecting to the closure of Deanes School. What a pity
we can't bring things together.
Apart from the existing

Apart from the existing accommodation there is ample space for future development in a substantial encatchment area. Surely this is an excellent opportunity to provide skills for our non academic youngsters. Let it not be missed.

Meat preferences aren't racist

HAVING just read the letter by Patricia Hall, Nov 8, I felt that it should be explained that those of the Jewish faith eat meat which has been killed according to the Torah. A quick, deep stroke across the throat with a sharp knife. This method is said to be painless, causing unconsciousness within two seconds, and is widely recognized as the most humane method of slaughter possible. I also understand that some animals are pre-stunned.

Halal meat is killed according to the Qu'ran and the name of Allah is invoked as it occurs, again a deep stroke across the throat. As a Christian I will not eat Halal meat. Whenever I am placed in a situation where I know the meat to be Halal I eat Ham, eggs or just salad. It is my choice. Not racist but my preference. Many schools use Halal meat as it is evidently cheaper than that killed in our own culture.

Where meat killed according to a religious method is served it should be clearly identified as such on the packaging and the shelf. If used in restaurants, customers should also be made aware by clear notices. We all have a preference, it is a personal choice. However, it is interesting to

However, it is interesting to note that a fuss is made over land animals as to how they are killed but nothing is done about the creatures of the sea. Anglers catch fish, keep them in a net, then throw them back in so that they can be caught again. Is that not cruel? According them it is OK because fish have no feelings! The last I read about this is, that contrary to the fisherman's viewpoint, fish actually do feel pain. Are we really to believe that the only creatures on the planet with no pain receptors are fish?

Mary Scott Upminster

There is no logic to light switch off

I WRITE in response to your report dated November 7 on part-time lighting in Basildon.

A petition of 6,000 signatures has been running since June after a local musician died in a road accident on Dry Street during daylight hours. The petition was handed in to County Hall who for months ignored the campaign and the people. Yellow Advertiser and its Yellow Advertiser and its reporter Charles Thomson along with MP Stephen Metcalfe, cllr Tony Ball, Baroness Smith, Gateway 97.8, local councillors and the mayor of London Boris Johnson have been the only people listening and supporting and fighting County Hall's continued denial of the need for a change of Dry Street's speed limit.

After months of campaigning it was thought a breakthrough had begun by Transport and Highways boss cllr Rodney Bass by setting aside public money of £250 to carry out speed tests on Dry Street to investigate bringing the limit down to 30mph. I now understand the street lighting on Dry Street at the back of Basildon Hospital is going to be switched off by the very same councillor who implemented the new road measures - the same road that cllr Geoff Williams warned the Transport and Highways department about four months prior to the fatal incident and, two years before that - almost to the day, another accident on the same road within 20

At what point is the community of Basildon going to be heard by these people who use public money but do not listen to the public? They make choices we do not want for our town. The arrogance displayed by the authority that makes this decision to switch lights off is outrageous. They have no care for the well being of this community and the stu-pidity is that the lights are switched back on at 5am, when natural daylight appears. There is no logic. Also on Dry Street, the Green Action Group is fighting for 750 homes not to be built, with the impending bull dozing of Longwood Equestrian Centre. Another fight, another campaign, another petition against politicians and their arrogance in not listening to the commu-nity and residents of Basildon.

The people who are making most of the decisions for the people of Basildon do not live in Basildon so frankly do not seem to give a care, but like spending the public money on what they want, without listening to what we need. Shame on them

Denise Briggenshaw Justice for Justin campaigner Basildon

Court decision is wrong

LAST week's front page was positively Orwellian. A young woman whose care of her child cannot be faulted is forced to hand the child over to the authorities for adoption. Why? Because she is socialising with somebody the state does not approve of. How does the state know? It is monitoring their Facebook pages. Horrifying.

No wonder these decisions

No wonder these decisions are made in secret courts - and no wonder the establishment tried on two occasions to slap gagging orders on Michelle Kelly's case once it reached the public magistrates court. We are reading far too many stories lately about these appalling decisions being made in secret courts. It is time to open them up and make them accountable. Who knows how many similar stories are going unreported because the state is making sure nobody has access to the hearings?

Well done to the local press for overturning the courtimposed gagging order and keeping the magistrates court open - and well done to Michelle's lawyer for then using that platform to expose the secret court which instigated this horrendous miscarriage of justice.

Michelle Kelly's son should be returned to her immediately. What a disgrace. This case shames us all.

AGICAL legend Paul Daniels is travelling the nation with a brand new show which is not only packed with old favourites but also features some new tricks that have never been performed in public before.

Paul and his wife, Debbie McGee, set off on The First Farewell Tour – From Legend to Leg End! in September and will be arriving at Queen's Theatre, Hornchurch, for an evening to remember on November 17. But is The First Farewell Tour a sign that Paul could soon be packing up his box of tricks for good?

"It is the first one... but I will never be able to match the likes of the Rolling Stones," he says. While this may be the first farewell tour it looks set to not be the last as the show has already gone down a storm at other the-atres. Paul says: "It is completely new and really the funniest show we have put together. This time we have hit the jackpot.

"This show is much more comedy based but you have to have the contrast of magic or you don't have to have the contact of magic or you don't have a show."

The couple are looking forward to appearing at the Queen's this Sunday with Debbie describing it as a "fantastic theatre" where they have filmed for television before.

But asked if they prefer theatre or television the pair admit to not having a favourite. Instead, Paul says: "I like performing on cruise ships, we do two cruise ships a year. There's big theatre, little small theatres and Debbie does Radio Berkshire. It's the wide variety that we like

And variety is definitely something that both Paul and Debbie have enjoyed in their careers over the years.

Paul, who began performing tricks at the age of 11 after reading a book on holiday called 'How to Entertain at Parties' went on to entertain the masses, from tricks for his fellow servicemen during his national service to audiences in their millions on prime time TV

In the early days he had already got his own catchphrase "you'll like this... not a lot, but you'll like it" during one memorable show. He said: "I was heckled by a man in a club in Bradford. By the end of the act I had a catchphrase.

After opportunity literally knocked for Paul when he was spotted by a TV producer, he was soon hosting his own show, The Paul Daniels Show on BBC1. It is here that he met his now wife, Debbie McGee, after she successfully auditioned for the role of a dancer in the Paul Daniels Summer Show in Great Yarmouth.

But being the 'other half' of a magical legend is not what Debbie should just be known for as her career has been just as successful, if not even more varied. After finishing her training at the Royal Ballet School, Debbie joined the Iranian National Ballet until political reasons forced her to return to the UK, the events of which are told in the recent film, Argo.

Once back in the UK she went into the more commercial side of dance and appeared on many TV light entertainment shows, even touring with ABBA. Today her career has spanned the widest of show business genres, incorporating classical ballet, modern dance, cabaret, theatre, television and films, and she has fulfilled a lifelong dream as Artistic Director and choreographer of the highly successful classical ballet company, Ballet Imaginaire. As well as presenting the well-known classics Swan Lake and Coppelia, Debbie has created two completely new classical ballets, The Artist's Dream and Phantom.

Many achievements have also been enjoyed by Paul throughout his career and when I asked him how he feels having received all the asked him how he leas having received all the top awards of the famed London Magic Circle, Debbie pipes up "Old!" before bursting into laughter, but seriously she says this is something that Paul doesn't tell people. He may be shy about the awards but he is undoubtedly proud of them saying "it's great" and then going on to add he was also presented with the prestigious 'Magician of the Year' Award by the Hollywood Academy of Magical Arts, the first time it has been presented to someone outside of America. "It is a huge achievement" says Paul.

So how has one of our magical legends stood the test of time? Quite simply says Paul, "Don't take yourself too seriously, just have fun.

While it is hard for the couple to name who they think is the best magician of all time, as Paul declares: "there is always someone best for their time" and Debbie adds it is "quite hard as there are so many different styles", Paul does reveal that although he doesn't have a favourite trick he does like to watch levitation.

Posing a question from my 12-year-old son on whether there is such a thing as magic or is it all an illusion, Paul says: "Magic is a thing.

It is actors playing the part of magicians. Yes it exists as a play, a film a special effect."

But when I ask my eldest son's question of how does he keeps his tricks secret Paul says:

"I'm not going to tell him" before laughing.
He adds: "The secret of a magic trick is not how it is done. Anybody can do a trick, the real secret is who presents it and how it is presented. How to make it entertainment."

Throughout the interview both Paul and Debbie opening chat, not just to myself but to each other, and I received a narrative or what was happening on the other end of the line from when Debbie was pretending to be a postman before dancing around the room, and then stroking his forehead while trying to retrieve a wayward hair.

While the pair have a passion for magic they also clearly have a passion for each other so I asked them what the secret was to their relationship, which has stood the test of time of not only living together, but working together too.

Paul said: "Separate bathrooms!" Then he added: "It is much easier to have a long marriage if you are working together.... there is no temptation."

Wordy script lets the side down

The Counsellor (18, 117

UDIENCES may require counselling sessions after two hours of twisted desire and treachery in the company of Ridley Scott's erotically charged thriller.

In the film's most memorable scene - not necessarily for the right reasons -Cameron Diaz's tattooed vixen removes her underwear, mounts the bonnet of her boyfriend's convertible and energetically performs a gymnastic feat across the windscreen that would surely be better served by a sponge or chamois leather.

You see a thing like that, it changes you," whimpers the boyfriend.

We wholeheartedly agree we will never see Diaz the same way again.

Her all-guns-blazing por-trayal is accompanied by terrific performances from Michael Fassbender and Penelope Cruz. All three are badly let down though by Cormac McCarthy's overly complicated and wordy script, which isn't remotely interested in the protago-nists' emotional turmoil, just It's a far cry from the nuances of the Coen brothers' Oscar-winning adaptation of McCarthy's No Country For Old Men, which elegantly offset his penchant for graphic violence with macabre humour and rich characterisation.

Fassbender plays a nameless counsellor, whose girl-friend Laura (Cruz) tearfully accepts his marriage proposal.
"I intend to love you until I die," he gushes.

That may be sooner than Laura thinks because the counsellor has invested his fortune in a drug trafficking operation across the Texas-Mexico border. Inevitably, the deal goes bad and the counsellor is marked for death along with two asso-ciates from the criminal underworld: floral-shirted playboy Reiner (Javier Bardem) and swaggering cowboy Westray (Brad Pitt).

"It's not that you're going down, counsellor... it's what you're taking down with you," Westray remarks sagely, before he boards a plane bound for London. Meanwhile, Reiner is distracted by his gold-toothed girlfriend Malkina (Diaz), who owns two pet cheetahs through the door, I'll already be gone," she purrs. The counsellor looks glorious courtesy of Scott's impeccable visuals, but all of that style means nothing when we can't forge an emotional bond to the characters as they wallow through the mire. Fassbender wrings himself dry of tears as he realises Westray's words are right: "If your definition of a friend is someone who would die for you then you don't have oruz is luminous, providing sweetness and light to counterbalance Diaz's slinky predator. But dialogue is sodden with dense philosophical musings on the fragility of life that don't sound like anything normal people would say to one another.

And when one doomed player takes an inordinate amount of time explaining the intricacies of a motorised device that tightens around the neck of a victim, we know it's only a matter of time before Scott realises this grisly vision in blood-drenched close-up.

He doesn't disappoint but his film certainly does.

Villa bringing history to life

E all like to have a nose around other people's houses, whether its a pal's new pad or a stately home, but what if you could turn back the clock and get an insight into what a Roman home actually looked like?

Well that is exactly what you can do in the Kent village of Eynsford where, situated along a winding country lane and a stone's throw from an enormous and quite frankly breathtaking old viaduct, is a large building hiding one of the most outstanding Roman villa survivals in the UK.

Set in the attractive surroundings of the Darent Valley the villa began life in AD 100 and was developed over the years to suit the tastes and beliefs of its successive wealthy owners.

It reached its peak of luxury in the mid 4th Century before falling victim to a fire in the 5th Century from when it seems to have been abandoned. Evidence of the villa was first recorded in around 1750 when the fence for Lullingstone deer park was renewed and posts were dug through a previously unknown mosaic, but it wasn't until 1949 when a 12 year excavation project began to unearth the entire site, most of which was car-ried out by volunteers. While the villa's kitchen, temple-mausoleum, granary and southern outbuildings were all reburied, most of the main house and its circular shrine is accessible to visi-

Under the protection of English Heritage building visitors can explore a walkway around the ruins from where they can see different parts of the villa, including a heated bath-suite and a house-church, and delve further into its past thanks to displays about its history.

Its spectacular mosaics, which are lit up by a specially commissioned light show that brings the villa to life, can still be seen as well as prints of its rare wall paintings and a fascinating collection of Roman artefacts including two busts that are believed to be made of Pentelic marble from Greece and carved in the Mediterranean area, one of which has been identified as Publius Helvius Pertinax, the son of a freedman who rose to become a senator and governor of Britannia in AD 185-6, appointed by Emperor Commodus, which the second has been identified as Pertinax's father, Publius Helvius

While the villa's temple-mausoleum may be buried once again, a coffin containing a Roman skeleton found in its cellar can also be seen at Lullingstone. While two coffins were found only one is on display as the other was ransacked by grave robbers in the late Roman period.

If you are visiting the site with children then there are plenty of things there to help you bring history to life. As well as being able to try traditional board games from the period and step into a variety of different Roman costumes, children can also try their hand at a Step Inside Lullingstone Roman Villa work sheet, that can also be downloaded from English Heritage's website before you

ask us, the award winning lettings agent

_andlord Question.

When I take a deposit and a tenant moves out what will be allowed to be fair wear and tear and not deducted from the deposit?

Think Property Answer

Fair wear and tear means making an allowance for: -

- the original age, quality and condition of any item at commencement of the tenancy
- the average useful lifespan to value ratio (depreciation) of the item
- the reasonable expected usage of such an item
- the number and type of occupants in the property
- the length of the tenant's occupancy

We'd say that there several points to make in addition to this very helpful guidance. Generally, you're not going to be able to claim for the full cost of replacing an item but merely a contribution towards its repair or replacement. Secondly, the type of tenant you have taken on makes a difference. So, if you've let the property to parents with kids or students, people with pets or smokers and that was recognized in the agreement, then you can't penalize tenants for behaving as anyone would reasonably expect them to.

Dealing with delicate edge-cases is a skilful balancing act. But try and be fair. Don't be a quibbler. Don't forget, your time is valuable too. If you spend several weeks, numerous phone calls and not a little stress guibbling over £50, then you're onto a loser.

By Steve Orme

FTEN the clichéd labels we give cars make no sense at all. Take for instance 'pocket rocket'. This is usually reserved for wholly impractical, small engined, enticingly fast but cramped car. It's a silly idea. As we enjoy the season of mellow mists and three months of late night frieworks I think you will find the box warns that the pocket is no place for any rocket.

Or the 'hot hatch'. Why not call it what it is: a performance hatchback? A hot hatch is one bought on dodgy documents

Then there are 'gas guzzlers'. Come on, let's be honest and call them what they are: really nice cars, often with Kobe-quality leather upholstery, television sets and the delicate ride of feather on the wind. Okay, by owning one you may be draining the oil resources of a medium desert.

So on to our stereotype of the day, the 'soft roader'. This one really does wind me up. Is it a car made of sponge cake? Perhaps these are ideal vehicles for when hot summer sunshine melts the tarmac

In fact, the generally accepted definition is a 4x4 which can't quite be trusted not to get stuck out on its own in a field.

ne X-Trail, for instance? Well, it has many big brothers in the Nissan range, but there is nothing soft about the X-Trail. It is not a crossover, as in large hatchback with jacked up suspension and enough all-wheel drive to tackle a muddy footprint, or what would be the point of Qashqai? Admittedly looks alone suggest a car more at home on the road than racing across ploughed fields. But with the Tekna six-speed manual coming in at £30k you have good reason to expect substantial knickers with your fur coat. And a fur coat it boasts. Electric leather seats add a touch of luxury which helps to deflect from a solidly constructed but not particularly classy cabin.

When you line that up with a simple dash layout and logical switches it is clear that Nissan expects the X-Trail to get it's knees dirty. And it did, along with the dog.

After a day at the same venue last year it took me the best part of Sunday morning to scrub a Land-Rover Discovery

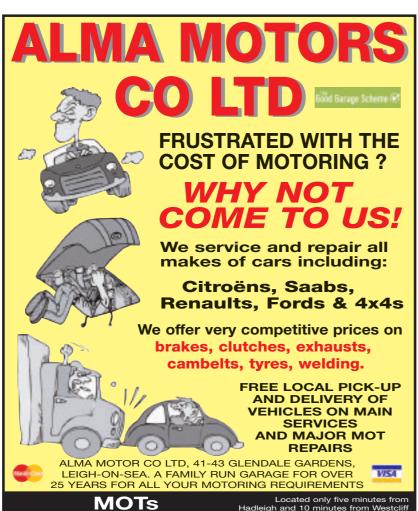

The Nissan was wipe clean. Well, ish. It has a big boot enhanced with an under-floor storage draw deep enough to be more than a gimmick. Tekna equipment includes touch-screen infotainment, reversing camera and panoramic sunroof.

Power comes from a 170bhp, two-litre diesel engine which could be more refined. It's quick enough at 10 seconds to 60mph. It's a flexible engine and 44mpg is a realistic expectation. The range is a huge 631 miles. On road ride quality it won't disappoint and 4x4 is selectable and is married to hill descent control. No diff lock so there will be a point at which the car is at its limit.

Nobody is going to think you any sort of flash Harry or merchant banker in one of these and for the money you could better enhance your image among badge snobs, but the X-Trail is a good worker with space and practicality and comfort.

We'll call it a medium off-roader

by Chris Russon

A DEVICE which will stop drivers using their phone to talk and text from behind the wheel has been developed by Ford and will be available early next year. The high tech gadget is being aimed at parents who want to make sure their children stay safe once they have passed their test. In an industry first, Ford has developed the MyKey – a smart car key which can be programmed to block phone calls and also limit a vehicle's top speed.

Road safety research indicates that drivers under the age of 25 are up to three times more likely to be involved in a fatal accident than experienced drivers.

Other MyKey features restrict the volume of a car's sound system, disable the audio until seatbelts are fastened and give alerts at critical speeds and when fuel is getting low.

The system will be introduced on the latest Fiesta early next year before being rolled out to other Ford models.

Ford says the 'Do Not Disturb' feature on the MyKey is designed to help parents encourage younger drivers to concentrate on the road ahead by reducing phone-related distractions. The system works by blocking incoming phone calls or text messages from a Bluetooth-paired mobile phone, diverting calls to voicemail and saving text messages on the device for viewing later.

"MyKey adds a new dimension to auto safety by giving drivers standard technology that encourages safer driving and limits their exposure to risk, regardless of age or expe-rience," said Peter Patzelt, Ford system architect for MyKey.

"MyKey can give parents peace of mind when they hand car keys over to their kids, and 'Do Not Disturb' enables parents to control another risk factor when their child gets behind the wheel."
The key can be used to restrict a car's top speed to 80mph while it can also be programmed to sound warnings at set points between 45 and 70mph. The MyKey pro-gramming is done via the car's master key allowing parents to restrict use of the car to driver's using secondary keys which cannot be used to override the commands.

Canvey 2 Hampton and Richmond 1

By Matthew Stanton
CANVEY'S new signing bragged a brace on his league debut in the home win against Hampton and Richmond at the Prospects Stadium on Saturday.

Striker John Sands, who was named Ryman Premier League top scorer last season, opened his account over the weekend.

The league match was the first they have played in over a month with Canvey playing five cup games in a row

Matt Game returned from suspension to play his usual central midfield role and John Sands starting his first game since joining from Bury Town.

However, the Gulls were down as soon as they started with Hampton and Richmond striker Charlie Moone giving the visitors the lead.

Moone has scored 11 goals and is now the joint second highest goal scorer in the division.

Despite the poor conditions, Canvey equalised on 39 minutes when Warren McBean slid the ball through for John Sands who man-aged to evade the offside trap before finishing.

On the restart, Matt Game stuck well from distance to warm Rodney Chiweshe's hands.

DEBUT: John Sands opens his scoring account

Shortly after a cross from Rob Bartley, after good work from Rio Bryan-Edwards, found McBean who saw his shot blocked.

With the ball rolling across the line, Sands had a simple tap in.

Canvey dominated the rest of the game and kept possession well.

As the game drew towards it's conclusion Canvey looked to hold the ball up by the corner flags, with Hampton conceding a string of free kicks in trying to regain posses-sion. The Man of the Match was named as Canvey's Freddie Warren.

The striker suffered a broken jaw while out celebrating in Newmarket following the team's 2-1 victory on Saturday

He will now undergo an operation on his jaw, which was broken on both sides.

O's and Blues through

SOUTHEND eased into the second round of the FA Cup at the weekend with a decisive victory away at fellow League Two club Morecambe.

The Blues were two goals up within just nine minutes with a brace from Anthony Straker.

A late long-range effort from Ryan Leonard sealed the victory and left an angry Morcambe manager, Jim Bentley, blaming his side's poor preparation while Shrimpers boss Phil brown was happy his side kept a clean sheet.
Southend will face another League Two side, Chesterfield, away in the second round on the weekend of December 7-8.

LEAGUE One table toppers, Orient, cruised past Southport in a sevengoal cup thriller and earned the right to face Walsall in the Second Round.

Orient, at home, were cruising at twonil after only nine minutes, courtesy of Shaun Batt and David Mooney strikes. Then the Skill Conference Premier outfit lost both their first choice goalkeeper, Danny Hurst and stopper, David Fitz-patrick after a sickening collision, with O's boss Russel Slade, said: "The injuries made the game a bit messy and we lost a little rhythm. To be fair to Southport, it galvanized them a bit. But the goal to make it three-one, just before half-time, just about put paid to it.'

Disaster in the cards

Southend 14 Launceston 17 SOUTHEND were dealt a bad hand on Saturday as referee Max Marsden dished out three yellow cards in two minutes to decide this home game against the Cornish All Blacks, Launceston.

Warners Park was wet and muddy with pools of standing water littering the pitch but both teams did their best to play some decent rugby. Southend had the best of it in the initial exchanges and took a deserved lead through Mark Billings who ran on to a cunning little grubber kick from the returning fly half Bradley Burr. Who then converted the try for Southend to take the lead 7-0

That was to be the end of any involvement from the backs though as both sets of forwards played amongst themselves. Not pretty, but to be expected in the conditions and entertaining in it's own way.

Play rolled back and forth with Southend slightly on top despite being penalised in the scrum. Launceston kicker Keiron Lewitt missed the chance to put some points on the board as one of these penalties sailed wide.

Eventually Southend forced themselves upfield and forced a penalty of their own.

They opted for the scrum and rolled forward. The Launceston lock and captain Ben Hilton bought things to a halt illegally and as he had been him at fault for the first penalty he got the first card of the day.

Southend took immediate advantage and trundled over the line for prop Bailey to touch down. Burr did the honours to extend the lead to 14-0.

Play swung back and forth without either side getting the upper hand.

With seconds to go before half time a small and insignificant fracas off the ball resulted in Mr Marsden flourishing his card to both prop Bailey for Southend and his opposite number Brown for the Cornishmen.

After the break play continued in much the same way as the first half with various replacements coming and going until both props bought the numbers back to 15 a side. The rain had stopped but the pitch was cutting up and becoming even heavier.

Launceston eventually won a lineout that resulted from a penalty kick. They kept the ball tight in the forwards and rambled over the for flanker Thomas Rawlings to touch down, Lewitt converted the points 14-7.

Launceston pressed up field forcing Southend on the defensive. Moments before, Southend's other prop Michael Guess, had been spoken to by Mr Marsden and as play continued Guess joined in the defence, illegally according to Mr Marsden, so out came the yellow card and off trudged Guess. Launceston elected to scrum from the penalty and mauled forward, down it went and out came another card, this time for Southend flanker David Jackson.

Desperate times for Southend as their 13 men tried to compete with a full Launceston side, but to no avail as hooker James Salter was pushed over by his pack. Lewiit added the extra two points and it was all level at 14-14.

Without the crowd noticing Mr Marsden had seen another offence because up went his hand with yet another yellow card in it and off went Southend captain and no 8 to join his fellow forwards in the dugout.

With only 12 players on the field Southend did their best against overwhelming odds defending superbly in keeping Launceston out but it proved an impossible task as they conceded yet another penalty in front of their posts. Lewitt kicked the easy three points and Launceston had taken the lead with six minutes to go.

What's causing your pain in the BUTT???

(Partners and Kids not Included)

Jon Handley-Collins,
Doctor of Chiropractic

Sciatica

Sciatica "Si-at-ika" is a group of symptoms involving pain in the buttock and back of the leg, only usually on one side of the body. In addition to pain there may be any combination of pins & needles, numbness, tingling and muscle weakness in the affected leg or foot.

The true meaning of Sciatica is often misunderstood. The term is merely a group of symptoms and not a diagnosis. This means that if you have been told you have Sciatica, you still have not been given a diagnosis, as the diagnosis is being told what is causing your Sciatica symptoms. Having a correct diagnosis is important because the treatment options for the different causes are very different.

The main causes of Sciatica are:

- Spinal disc herniation: Some people call this a "slipped disc" but what actually happens is the fluid like contents of your spinal disc causes the outer layers of the disc to bulge out. If this bulge is on to a spinal nerve in your lower back, it can cause Sciatica.
- Spinal Stenosis: This is where the hole for your spinal nerve to exit from the spinal canal closes up and puts pressure on the affected nerve, causing Sciatica.
- Piriformis Syndrome: The piriformis is a muscle in your buttock. The Sciatic nerve passes very closely to this muscle and in rare cases passes through the muscle. When this muscle gets tight it can irritate the Sciatic nerve, which can cause Sciatica.

To find out whether Chiropractic can help, a Chiropractor will first conduct a case history and physical exam to narrow a patient's symptoms down to find out what's causing them. This includes neurological, orthopaedic and Chiropractic examinations. If deemed necessary, an X-Ray of the affected area will also be taken.

Then there is a return visit to explain our findings, to tell you what has been found and what needs to be done to sort it out.

At the Optimum Spine Centre, (based at 1212 London Road, Leigh on Sea) we are conducting these initial consultations, including X-Rays

(if required) and report of findings for just £15.00 (usually £90). Give the Centre a call today on 01702 710084.
